

Jillian Salmon
Communications & Outreach Coordinator

Jillian Salmon is the Communications & Outreach Coordinator at ADvancing States (formerly NASUAD). In her role, Jillian manages the organization’s weekly newsletter, website, and social media accounts. She also coordinates various aspects of conference communications, including designing the website and mobile app for the HCBS Conference and serving as the point-of-contact for conference speakers. Additionally, Jillian provides research and administrative support to senior staff on projects including policy webinars and state technical assistance surveys.

Prior to joining ADvancing States, Ms. Salmon worked as a research assistant with the American University Health Studies Department, where she studied park access and physical activity in minority populations and presented her findings at the Mathias Student Research Conference. Ms. Salmon holds a BA in public health with a concentration in marketing from American University in Washington, DC.
